“John is a rare breed. He couples broad scientific expertise (as an expert programmer, bioinformatician, and chemist) with a personality that makes him enjoyable to work with. I've worked with John extensively on open source bioinformatics tools, academic research papers, and grants. He is probably the most clever programmer I know. Watching him solve problems is fascinating because I always learn some new technique.” (LinkedIn Recommendation)

Dusty Chadwick

Backend software engineering teammate at Doba Inc. and CruxConnect
AWS, Serverless Cloud architect, former CTO of Room Choice

“John is so incredibly dynamic that he naturally becomes an informative resource on just about any topic. He is never satisfied by not having fully researched a topic to the point that he understands it at an expert level. ... As our lead data scientist, we regularly engaged his personality for data understanding as well as his investigational skills in helping to define our core architecture around elasticsearch and heavy data transactions. ... Working with him to develop our next generation platform, it was exciting to see him build code through OOP in a way that felt organic and evolutionary. He was able to grow this codebase easily and mutate it as the platform changed.” (LinkedIn Recommendation)
